

MARRIOTT MOXY HOTEL IN WASHINGTON D.C.

THE PROJECT

The Marriott Moxy Hotel, in Washington, D.C., wanted to redefine the guest experience and elevate its vibrant atmosphere. The hotel wanted a design that would connect the inside and outside spaces and have a lively and colorful atmosphere. The goal was to create an inviting and flexible gathering spot for guests within the hotel's dynamic and colorful atmosphere. Traditional doors with tracks or loud hydraulic systems were not aligned with the hotel's design philosophy, prompting the search for an innovative solution.

OUR SOLUTION

The solution to Marriott Moxy Hotel's quest for a transformative design lay in the installation of two S-3000 Foldaway Vertical Lift Bifold Doors. These innovative doors, a departure from traditional garage doors with tracks or loud hydraulic doors, introduced a new level of flexibility and connectivity to the hotel's game room lobby area and outdoor patio. The S-3000 Foldaway doors, when lifted upwards, created an instant connection between the indoor and outdoor spaces.

Unlike conventional doors that can feel restrictive, the S-3000 Foldaway doors effortlessly blended the boundaries between inside and outside, infusing a sense of excitement and unity. The design philosophy of these doors perfectly complemented the Moxy Hotel's upbeat and colorful details, ensuring a memorable and unique stay for visitors. The installation of these doors transformed a regular hotel space into an exceptional and adaptable environment, aligning with the Moxy brand's commitment to providing a distinct and lively experience.

The installation of the S-3000 Foldaway Vertical Lift Bifold Doors at the Marriott Moxy Hotel in Washington, D.C., not only met the project's objectives but exceeded them by transforming spaces and elevating the overall guest experience. The doors seamlessly connected the indoor and outdoor areas, providing flexibility and vibrancy that aligns with the hotel's commitment to offering a unique and memorable stay for its guests. The Sovereign S-3000 Foldaway vertical lift bifold door has successfully elevated the guest experience at the Marriott Moxy Hotel, turning it into a standout destination that reflects the spirit and vibrancy of D.C.

BENEFITS

1. Versatility and Adaptability
